

Spring 2025 Course Overview

International Design and Development

Session A, 1.5 credits, Call No. 11782, PLA 6863

James von Klemperer and Forth Bagley, Wednesday 11 - 1 pm, 209 Fayerweather

The course uses curated case studies ranging from single buildings to large-scale urban plans to understand how design contributes to and enhances the value of urbanism. At the completion of the six sessions, participants will gain a comprehensive insight into a diverse array of projects in New York and various global cities. These projects are shaped by factors such as: land ownership and acquisition, density, market dynamics, climate resilience, sustainability, cultural identity and design trends driving architectural innovation.
