SCHEDULE

The beginning of the term shall focus on multiple introductions: codes, rules, and constraints will be the themes explored through organized talks by architects, health experts, engineers, and city officials. The site study and precedent assignments will run in parallel and serve to provoke early thinking and questions about housing in New York City and situating it to global models. After the mid-term, there will be swift and intense focus on design, systems, energy, and novel housing models with invited speakers presenting their work in a conversation setting. All talks are to be held in 114 Avery. These talks and guests have been invited especially for the housing studio.
